Introducing Our New Podcast!

RFK National Resource Center: Youth Justice Transformation in Action

The RFK National Resource Center is connecting with you in new ways in 2022! Our new podcast, RFK National Resource Center: Youth Justice Transformation in Action, will be available later this month and feature new episodes every other month.

Each episode will focus on an important topic that is currently impacting youth- and family-serving systems. The podcast will feature dynamic interviews with leaders and practitioners from the field who are successfully navigating youth justice transformation within their communities. Podcast guests will also include widely respected experts, who will share their research and perspectives on best practices that support better outcomes for children and families.

Through the podcast, our community will hear stories of change management, leadership, achieved outcomes, and so much more. We are inspired every day by the work that is supporting positive outcomes for our youth and are excited to connect you with others who are living the transformation experience.

Episode One – Coming Soon!

The first episode of this series will be released on January 31, 2022. Please stay tuned for updates and visit our website for additional information on how to access and subscribe to the podcast: www.rfknrcjj.org/podcast.

Robert F. Kennedy National Resource Center for Juvenile Justice uses proven models, frameworks, tools, resources, and the best available research to serve local, state, and national leaders, practitioners, and youth-serving agencies to improve system performance and outcomes for youth involved with the juvenile justice system. RFK National Resource Center focuses primarily on youth with prior or current involvement in both the child welfare and juvenile justice systems (dual status youth), the review and improvement of juvenile probation systems, and the use of a model framework to address the state and national laws and policies governing the exchange and sharing of data, information, and records for youth and families.
